

HIP HIP HIP.....HURRAAYYYY

There once lived a teacher who was also a stammerer. He was transferred to a community school in a certain village. He introduced himself to the kids and proceeded to teach them how pronunciations. He then took a chalk and wrote some keywords on the board and asked the school kids to repeat after him whatever he says.

The word on the board was crocodile but because the teacher was a stammerer, he said,

Crooococo Crooococo Crooococo cocodile.

And funny enough, the kids also responded; Crooococo Crooococo Crooococo cocodile.

The teacher repeated what he said and so did the kids.

He then became offended and went to report to the headteacher, the kids were reprimanded, and the teacher continued to teach.

The next word on the board was Hippopotamus, and as the teacher said,
